

David Inserra, Policy Analyst in The Heritage Foundation's Davis Institute for National Security and Foreign Policy at The Heritage Foundation, specializes in homeland security issues, including cyber, counterterrorism, and immigration policy.

Inserra researches and writes Heritage Foundation papers and contributes to Heritage's news platform, The Daily Signal, on a variety of homeland security topics and policies. As part of this work, he maintains Heritage's timeline of Islamist terrorist attacks and plots against the U.S. homeland since 9/11. He also writes newspaper op-eds and is a frequent guest on radio and television stations across the country including Fox News and NPR. Inserra participates in private briefings as well as in public debates and events to discuss national security issues facing the U.S.

Inserra, who joined Heritage in 2012, grew up in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. He holds a Masters in Public Policy from George Mason University and a Bachelor of Arts in government and economics from the College of William & Mary. He and his wife, Cayla, reside in Arlington, Virginia.
